Should you need additional assistance to lodge your complaint please, also contact the Compliance Officer of AQR Australia using the above contact details.

How can a complaint be made and what information may be required?

A complaint may be made by any communication medium, such as: phone, email or letter.

In order to investigate a complaint effectively, AQR Australia will need the following information from you:

- appropriate identification and contact details; and
- sufficient details about the nature of the complaint together with relevant background information.

Investigation and resolution

Once a complaint is received AQR Australia will commence its investigation into the matter.

Possible resolutions include:

- Rectifying any mistake; or
- Providing additional information or documentation to enable the complainant to understand what happened and how we have dealt with the matter.

How long will it take?

Resolution at point of inquiry

Where possible, AQR Australia will attempt to resolve matters at first point of contact.

Initial acknowledgement

AQR Australia will aim to acknowledge all complaints received within 24 hours of receipt, or as soon as practicable. Such acknowledgement may be verbal or written.

Formal responses

A formal response is a written communication from AQR Australia to the complainant that:

- Advises them of the outcome from their complaint;
- Explains their right to take the complaint to Australian Financial Complaints Authority ("AFCA") if they are not satisfied with the resolution; and
- Provides the contact details of AFCA.

If AQR Australia rejects or partially rejects the complaint, we will clearly set out the reasons for the decision by:

- Identifying and addressing all the issue raised;
- Setting out the findings and refer to information supporting the findings; and
- Provide enough details for the complainant to understand the basis for the decision and be informed when deciding to refer the matter to AFCA.

The length of time AQR Australia takes to resolve a complaint will depend on the nature and complexity of the issues a complainant has raised, and the extent of the enquiries required to enable those issues to be addressed. However, a formal response will be made within 30 days from the point of receiving the complaint.
