Source: AQR. Performance shown in AUD for Class 1P, the retail offered class of units in the Fund. Gross performance does not reflect the deduction of management fees and costs, except for the deduction of interposed entity costs and certain trading costs associated with OTC traded investment instruments, which would reduce an investor's actual return. Net performance is net of management fees and costs (see Key Details section). Please note historical management fees and costs may differ from current management fees and costs. For further information please refer to the PDS. Performance is annualised for periods greater than one year. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.

About the Fund

The AQR Wholesale Managed Futures Fund ARSN 147 951 791 ("Fund") seeks to generate attractive risk-adjusted returns while targeting a low long-term average correlation to traditional markets over the medium to long term.

The Fund will be actively managed and will primarily invest in a portfolio of futures contracts and derivative instruments across the asset classes of commodities, currencies, fixed income, credit, volatility and equities (the "Asset Classes"). AQR uses a proprietary, systematic and quantitative process which utilises both price and economic data, with the aim to identify and benefit from price trends across the Asset Classes. AQR generally expects that the Fund will have exposure in long and short positions across all Asset Classes, but at any one time the Fund may emphasise one or two of the asset classes or a limited number of exposures within an individual asset class.

The universe of investments for the Fund may change under varying conditions and as the instruments evolve over time.

Broad-based securities indices are unmanaged and are not subject to fees and expenses typically associated with managed accounts or investment funds. Investments cannot be made directly in an index.

The Bloomberg AusBond Bank Bill Index is engineered to measure the Australian money market by representing a passively managed short term money market portfolio.

The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index is a multi-currency benchmark that includes treasury, government-related, corporate and securitized fixed-rate bonds from both developed and emerging markets issuers.

The MSCI World Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index that is designed to measure the equity market performance of developed markets (excluding Australia).

The SG Trend Index is designed to track the largest 10 (by AUM) CTAs and be representative of the managed futures trend-following space.

The information in this document, including statements concerning financial market trends, is based on current market conditions, which will fluctuate and may be superseded by subsequent market events or for other reasons. Performance of all cited indices is calculated on a total return basis with dividends reinvested. The indices do not include any expenses, fees or charges and are unmanaged and should not be considered investments.

Investments are subject to investment risk, including possible delays in repayment and loss of income and principal invested. The fund has exposure to the gains and losses of commodities, futures, options, derivatives and other financial instruments. There is a risk of substantial loss associated with trading commodities, futures, options, derivatives and other financial instruments. Before trading, investors should carefully consider their financial position and risk tolerance to determine if the proposed trading style is appropriate. Investors should realize that when trading futures, commodities, options, derivatives and other financial instruments one could lose the full amount of their investment in the Fund. All funds committed to such a trading strategy should be purely risk capital. Diversification does not eliminate the risk of experiencing investment losses.

Risk allocation is complex and subject to change. No representation or warranty is made as to the reasonableness of the assumptions made or that all assumptions used in calculating risk allocations have been stated or fully considered.
