Broad-based securities indices are unmanaged and are not subject to fees and expenses typically associated with managed accounts or investment funds. Investments cannot be made directly in an index.

The Bloomberg AusBond Bank Bill Index is engineered to measure the Australian money market by representing a passively managed short term money market portfolio.

The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index is a multi-currency benchmark that includes treasury, government-related, corporate and securitized fixed-rate bonds from both developed and emerging markets issuers.

The MSCI World Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index that is designed to measure the equity market performance of developed markets.

The information in this document, including statements concerning financial market trends, is based on current market conditions, which will fluctuate and may be superseded by subsequent market events or for other reasons. Performance of all cited indices is calculated on a total return basis with dividends reinvested. The indices do not include any expenses, fees or charges and are unmanaged and should not be considered investments.

Investments are subject to investment risk, including possible delays in repayment and loss of income and principal invested. The fund has exposure to the gains and losses of commodities, futures, options, derivatives and other financial instruments. There is a risk of substantial loss associated with trading commodities, futures, options, derivatives and other financial instruments. Before trading, investors should carefully consider their financial position and risk tolerance to determine if the proposed trading style is appropriate. Investors should realize that when trading futures, commodities, options, derivatives and other financial instruments one could lose the full amount of their investment in the Fund. All funds committed to such a trading strategy should be purely risk capital.

Diversification does not eliminate the risk of experiencing investment losses.

Risk allocation is complex and subject to change. No representation or warranty is made as to the reasonableness of the assumptions made or that all assumptions used in calculating risk allocations have been stated or fully considered.
